DeVry University
Undergraduate Internship Offerings

Today's job market is challenging and highly competitive. It requires nothing short of top-notch skills and real-world experience to set yourself apart from the rest of the field and start the career you want.

So why not get yourself some hands-on experience in the real world while you’re still in school. DeVry works in partnership with employers to create programs for you that will both apply directly to your area of study and offer opportunities to get a leg up on the competition.

Students interested should note the following application deadlines for session offerings. The internship class will be offered during the January, May, and September sessions for 2016.
